

Why would you need a Veterinary Neurologist?

You may need to see a Veterinary Neurologist if your pet has one or more of the following symptoms:

- Seizure, odd behavior, confusion, unexplained lethargy or dullness
- Poor balance, head tilt, walking as though drunk
- Inability to walk, weakness, paralysis
- Back, neck or head pain
- Blindness, inability to blink, swallow or eat, regurgitation, voice change
- Concern for specific conditions such as wobbler syndrome, disk disease, encephalitis or brain tumor
